Do you want to learn more about biblical archaeology, aerospace, or the 2020 presidential election? Then UNI’s Lifelong University is the program for you. Courses and class formats include four-week, three-week and one-time workshops.

UNI’s Lifelong University is one example of our commitment to serving Iowans of all ages. The program, geared toward the lifelong learner, will offer non-credit courses taught by retired and current UNI faculty and staff. The courses will be taught on campus or in the community on weekdays.

UNI offers a world-class university education, providing personalized experiences and creating a lifetime of opportunities. So come join us for the adventure, and take a class just for the fun of it!

Western Home Communities and New Aldaya Lifescapes are now proud partners of Lifelong University at the University of Northern Iowa, providing space and funding for the services offered through the program.
Biblical Archaeology: Its History and New Discoveries
This course examines the history of biblical archaeology from its beginnings in the nineteenth century A.D. to the present. It examines the contributions of the major archaeologists and the most important archaeological discoveries related to the Bible (Old and New Testaments). The class also examines how archaeologists excavate and interpret ancient artifacts. Portions of the class will feature new and unpublished biblical discoveries, some from the author’s excavations in the Holy Land.

Instructor: Kenneth Atkinson, Professor Department of History
Dates: Thursday, February 4, 11, 18, & 25
Time: 10:00am–11:30am
Location: Diamond Event Center, Western Home Communities
Cost: $50.00

Issues in the 2020 Presidential Election
Several different issues have begun to gel as the ones that may be among the most important to voters in the 2020 presidential election. This course will spend time going in depth on each of them, discussing the history of the issue in the U.S., a comparison with other countries, and the candidate’s positions on each. Topics covered will include healthcare, college tuition and debt, the national dev and deficit, and social security, Medicare and Medicaid.

Instructor: Dr. Jayme Renfro
Dates: Monday, March 9, 16, 23, & 30
Time: 10:00am–11:30am
Location: Diamond Event Center, Western Home Communities
Cost: $50.00

Aerospace: the Sky’s No Limit
This course is designed to offer an introduction to the principles of flight, plus the concentrated histories of aviation and space flight.

Week One “Taking Off!” – Through dialogue and class discussion we will assess the flight experiences of class members (in a typical group we will have a wide spectrum of experience, from pilots to those who have never flown.) This will enable the instructor to enlist the aid of the former and adjust the approach for the latter. After break, we will view “To Fly” by Smithsonian Air & Space.

Week Two “Principles and Practices” – We will explore the basics of flight, thrust vs drag, lift vs gravity, pitch, roll and yaw. Flight instrumentation, navigation and weather will also be briefly addressed. A variety of handouts and brief hands-on activities will be utilized.

Week Three: “Aviation History: The Jet Age and Cold War” – Here we will also address the explosive growth of commercial aviation. Because this is the era the class members will have lived through, their input and reactions will be sought through dialogue and discussion.

Week Four “Humans in Space” – A brief history of USSR Cosmonauts, NASA Astronauts, & International Space Voyagers. This session chronicles the highlights and tragedies of space exploration from its beginning to the latest expedition on the International Space Station.

Instructor: Lt. Col. Steve Palmoquist, C.A.P. (retired)
Dates: Tuesday, March 3, 10, 24, & 31
Time: 10:00am–11:30pm
Location: Windcove Western Home
Cost: $50.00
