Do you want to learn more about film appreciation, the Vietnam War, or art history? Then UNI’s Lifelong University is the program for you. Courses and class formats include four-week, three-week and one-time workshops.

UNI’s Lifelong University is one example of our commitment to serving Iowans of all ages. The program, geared toward the lifelong learner, will offer non-credit courses taught by retired and current UNI faculty and staff. The courses will be taught on campus or in the community on weekdays.

UNI offers a world-class university education, providing personalized experiences and creating a lifetime of opportunities. So come join us for the adventure, and take a class just for the fun of it!

Western Home Communities and New Aldaya Lifescapes are now proud partners of Lifelong University at the University of Northern Iowa, providing space and funding for the services offered through the program.

Ken Burns’ THE VIETNAM WAR: Overview and Exploration

We will be examining sections of Ken Burns’/Lynn Novick’s documentary masterpiece “The Vietnam War” with an eye to raising and discussing important questions:
- What kept us involved?
- What should we have done?
- What did we learn?

Each two-hour class will focus on one of these questions, viewing episodes from the documentary in chronological order.

Peeking into Art History with Local Artist

Looking into art history and into my own work, we will follow an array of themes of form and meaning. Rather than chronological or broad, our search will be particular and careful. In this way we can respond more fully to our own immediate sensations of artworks by following relationships among them. These talks will be a lavishly illustrated with slides.
